Overview:

Internships / Student Exchange / Mentoring Programmes: LWI has trained over 100 internees at both postgraduate and undergraduate levels, over the past five years including internees from Des Moines University DMU (Iowa, USA), Babcock University Ilishan, University of Lagos, University of Ibadan, University of Abuja, The Bells University and Olabisi Onabanjo University among others.

LWI is an affiliate of the School of Public & Allied Health of the Babcock University, Ilishan, Nigeria and the organisation is currently co-supervising a PhD Project at the University of Helsinki, Finland.

At LWI, Interns and Exchange Students are assigned preceptors and co-preceptors within the organisation. They usually undergo a strict regimen and extensive in-house training at inception. They are thereafter exposed to external affiliates of the organisation as part of their internship training including exposure to the US Consulate and its web-based training, as well as health-facility, pharmaceutical plant or industrial tours. LWI Interns and Exchange Students are concurrently exposed to academic and professional practice.

Specialised / Customised Training Programmes: A 'demand-driven' initiative to fill social gaps in the worklife continuum; LWI designs training programmes from scratch, to suit each organization's needs.

At LWI, our goal is to develop 'well-rounded professionals'. Thus, the LWI Academy slogan...'living well by design'

Pre-requisite for LWI Internship:

- The Academy will accept students in various fields of endeavor into its Internship program including students of Public Health, Medicine, Pharmacy, Nursing, Biochemistry, Microbiology, Journalism, Marketing, Management, Education, Microbiology, Economics, Biological, Physical or Social Sciences and other related fields.
- The LWI internship programme ranges from 6weeks – 1year
- Institutions are expected to pay a token 'training stipend' to LWI Academy for internship students and exchange students.
- However, individual students may approach the organization on individual merit; private fees are payable; however waiver of fees may be by barter

Residency at LWI:

The organisation is currently training Resident Pharmacists at a highly subsidized fee. The 6-month Public Health Residency Programme is a pragmatic, 'hands-on' public health training programme, which competes in parity with such programmes anywhere in the world, including Ivy League Colleges. It involves rigorous training in evidence based research and epidemiology, programme planning & implementation, international health, sustainability drive, funding strategy and innovation, and, logistics planning.

Thank you.
